Resolving self-association of a therapeutic antibody by formulation optimization and molecular approaches.

A common challenge encountered during development of high concentration monoclonal antibody formulations is preventing self-association. This can lead to decreased efficacy and increased manufacturing costs. Formulation optimization and molecular engineering strategies can be employed to address these challenges.

Title: Resolving self-association of a therapeutic antibody by formulation optimization and molecular approaches.

Publication Type: Journal Article

Year of Publication: 2014

Authors: Casaz, P, Boucher, E, Wollacott, R, Pierce, BG, Rivera, R, Sedic, M, O

Journal: MAbs

Volume: 6

Issue: 6

Pagination: 1533-9

Date Published: 2014 Nov 2

ISSN: 1942-0870

Abstract: A common challenge encountered during development of high concentration monoclonal antibody formulations is preventing self-association. This can lead to decreased efficacy and increased manufacturing costs. Formulation optimization and molecular engineering strategies can be employed to address these challenges.

DOI: 10.4161/19420862.2014.975658

Alternate Journal: MAbs

PubMed ID: 25484044